DAUGHTER REMAINS, DEFIANT AND SILENT

WATERTOWN MAN FREED IN SCHAUDE POISONING CASE

VERDICT EXPECTED BY SPECTATORS, WHO APPLAUD.

Conflicting Statements of Mrs. Schaudé Hurt Case of State, Opinion.

(By Staff Correspondent.)
Elkhorn—Ernest Kufahl, 26, walked out of the Watertown county circuit court rooms Monday night a free man, after being acquitted by a 12-man jury of being principal in the poisoning of Edward J. Schaudé, Whitewater farmer, or of mixing the poison in the prune juice for the purpose of murdering him.

Applause greeted the verdict when it was read by Judge Chester A. Fowler, Pond du Lac, at a few minutes before 6 o'clock, when handed to him by John MacFarlane, Delavan, foreman of jury which heard the five day trial. A unanimous verdict of acquittal was voted by the jury on the four counts, after deliberating from 3 p. m. and Walter Babcock, deputy sheriff, notified the court at 5:15. The men marched into the box 10 minutes later, after counsel was notified.

Women Cheer Verdict

A demonstration such as has not been seen or heard here in years greeted the reading of the verdict of "not guilty" with spontaneous cheering by the spectators and a chorus of feminine voices, shouting "Good!"

The verdict was an end, no longer facing the possibility of years of imprisonment for a crime of which he has maintained his innocence. Kufahl greeted the verdict with a hearty smile. Unmistakable that court was in session, he sprang to his feet and moved toward the box of the defendant, but was held back by the court.

He turned back to his seat when Judge Fowler restored order by pronouncing adjournment. The court adjourned at 5:30 p. m. and the jury and adjourned court.

Moved to tears by the joy brought by the verdict, which freed their son and brother, Kufahl and Alvin Kufahl stood side by side on the rostrum while Ernest Kufahl thanked each one of the 12 jurors as they filed out of the box.

Many men and women spectators shook Kufahl's hand as they offered their congratulations and expressed confidence in his future and sister, Wilfred C. Zabel, Milwaukee, and Nicholas and Wallace Thauer, Watertown, were congratulated by many and thanked by the defendant and his father and sister.

Accompanied by the two who have stayed at his side throughout the trial, which opened last Wednesday, he left the courtroom without Sheriff Wylie or a deputy.

Strayed 9 to 3.
From members of the jury it was learned that the first ballot taken shortly after they started deliberating at 2:30 o'clock showed nine for acquittal and three for conviction. On each of the three successive ballots taken until it was unanimous there in favor of acquittal gained a vote, with the poll 10-2; 11-1 and 12 for declaring Kufahl's innocence.

Verdict No Surprise.
The verdict was no surprise to spectators who have listened throughout the trial to the testimony and there was a general feeling in Elkhorn that the jury had done its duty, knowing that a man is always innocent until proved guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. One enthusiastic young man heralded the tidings by ringing the bell.

Swift Flames in Tenement Snuff Out Lives of 13

(By Associated Press)
New York—Thirteen lives were snuffed out in a few minutes in a fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, which today swept from door to door, blocking escape of the eight families who occupied the building.

Some of those in the upper two stories, awakening to find the flames at their heads, met death before they could even try to dash through the roaring furnace with which they were confronted.

Of the dead, five were boys and two girls, four women and two men, one of the children was an infant, whose charred body was found at the breast of its dead mother.

SIX WOUNDED AS THUGS MAKE VAIN DASH FOR LIBERTY

Louisville.—Six men, two of them suspected automobile bandits, and alleged escaped convict and four city policemen, nursed bullet wounds today as a result of a desperate bid for freedom by the gunmen which included a running pistol fight through traffic thronged streets in the heart of the downtown district here.

The pistol battle was initiated late yesterday by Lee Wallace, 23, Franklin, Ind., and Rex Stacey, alias Harry Miller, 25, St. Louis, who, when suddenly drawn weapons, wounded four policemen who were guarding a patrol as the machine approached police headquarters and started the chase. Police and detectives, joined in the pursuit and hundreds of persons, pedestrians, occupants of street cars and automobiles and workers in office buildings, as excited by the shooting, witnessed the spectacular chase.

Flight of the gunmen was cut short by bullets from the service pistol of Detective W. J. Diehl, who fired a shot which struck Stacey in the chest when he heard shots and saw the two men running in his direction.

"KUFALH EQUALLY AT FAULT," WOMAN'S CRY AT VERDICT

(By Staff Correspondent)
Elkhorn—"Ernest was just as much to blame as I was," cried Mrs. Myrtle Schaudé, when told of the verdict of the jury, which leaves her alone to pay the penalty for the tragedy, which wrecked the Schaudé household and left her four fine children fatherless.

"The woman pays," probably will be written in her case.

Mrs. Anna McDowell, nurse who has been her constant attendant in jail, brought the news to the woman in her cell, after she had eaten supper Monday night.

"I don't know the truth but they wouldn't believe it," said Mrs. Schaudé, as she referred to her testimony on the witness stand that she was guilty of either of the two charges, the poisoning of the prune juice or the poisoning of the woman after Ernest had mixed strychnine in the prune juice. She bore up bravely under the shock, being prepared for such a possibility.

Brother Visits Her
Her brother, Frank Coad, who with her two sisters, Mrs. Roberts, Dugan, and Mrs. Anderson, of Union Grove, has been in Elkhorn throughout the trial was the only one who came to comfort her during the evening. He stayed but five minutes and left for Union Grove.

Myrtle Schaudé was not in the courtroom at any time during the trial.

McAdoo in Race to Stay as Friends Wax Ardent

(By Associated Press)
Chicago—Friends of Woodrow Wilson are prominently available for the presidency, and the "hope of the progressive thought of the nation," William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, today is the race for the democratic presidential nomination to stay.

A conference of supporters from various states, which met here yesterday to discuss the effect of Mr. McAdoo's connection with the Doherty oil interests, unanimously approved a resolution demanding his renunciation of the Doherty oil interests and condemning the recent infamous conspiracy which attempted to besmirch his name, and proclaim that he has emerged from the attacks stronger than before.

McAdoo's supporters are demanding his leadership. Called to address the assembly after the vote of confidence, Mr. McAdoo outlined his platform.

These are some of the things "that need to be done to protect the rights of the people and satisfy the demands of progress," he said.

BLUEBLOODS WILL SHOW AT U. OF W.

Annual Stock Show to Be Brilliant Event—Schedule Special Train.

Animals worth more than $300,000 will be on display at Madison when the fifth annual livestock exposition of the Wisconsin college of agriculture opens its doors, Feb. 22-23, for the little international, a number from Rock county will attend the exhibit Friday, arrangements being made for a special train returning from Madison over the C. M. & St. P. railroad.

Herds and flocks of the college of agriculture, together with Madison's famous saddle horses, Wilson & Company's Chicago noted six-horse team and other show animals of southern Wisconsin are being groomed and perfected in their show ring manners for the event. Practically every student registered in the college of agriculture is aiding in some way in the production of the exhibit. The committee under the direction of a general manager began preparations early last fall to make this year's show the "best ever." The exposition is put on under the auspices of the Wisconsin Saddle and Saddle Club, a student organization, with the agricultural faculty and Wisconsin Livestock Breeders' association co-operating.

Judging Contest. Feb. 22 has been designated as "Wisconsin day." The final contest of the state-wide high school judging contests will be held with 25 high schools, victors in their respective districts, competing. In the evening a horse show will be staged, with J. L. Edmunds of Illinois, judge of national reputation, placing the awards in the various saddle and harness classes. Co-ed entries in the riding events include Lola Barry, Milwaukee; Edith Jovis, La Crosse; Alice Cuckett, Chicago; Catherine Corbett, Plymouth; Elizabeth Gilmore, Philadelphia; and Clara Klosterman, Shawano. Entertaining "stunts" are being arranged by different campus organizations.

A Scotch kilie band is going to head the livestock parade. Other bands include the University of Wisconsin band and the Janesville high school band of 60 pieces, sent to Madison by the Kiwanis club of Janesville and entertained by the Kiwanis club of Madison.

"Angie's" Homecoming. The following day is to be "Madison and University day." The results of the livestock judging contest will be made early by J. C. Robinson, president of the Wisconsin Livestock Breeders' association, J. H. Skinner, dean of the Hoosier college of agriculture, will address the boys on the "Problems of the Livestock Beginner," and H. J. Russell, Dodge dean of agriculture, will emphasize some of the phases of livestock production.

The meeting will also be a get-together for all former Wisconsin graduates of this and other states who will be in the city for the exposition. Judging of the university livestock fitted and shown by the students begins in the afternoon.

Prize animals which were prize-winners at state fairs and the international at Chicago are again to compete in this mid-winter show, but this time the basis of award is not their individual qualities but the skill of the showmen in fitting and exhibiting them. In the sheep department, 46 animals which won prizes at the recent Chicago show will be shown. Frank Kleinholz, veteran Wisconsin shepherd, who last fall brought back to the college from the international at Chicago more prizes than were won by all the other judges combined, is training his students in the tricks of his art. The first prize aged Percheron mare is one of the 14 ribbon winners shown by the university at Chicago which is being fitted for the student show.

Stock County Stock. Visiting livestock breeders at the international will have the opportunity of seeing Walewin Ollie Hiltgaard, All-American Holstein Bull, owned by Craig, Post, Jones & Co., Janesville. "The Living Holstein Model" was three times grand champion at the Milwaukee state fair and has been selected as most typical of the breed.

Hubertum Bentschneider, junior champion Milking-Shorthorn bull of the Chicago international, is to be a star attraction of "Ollie" during the days of the show, and will be among the prize winners. He is a product of Rock county, being owned by Chris Iye of Avon. The animals will be in the care of J. C. Nisbet, livestock agent of the Rock county Farm Bureau, a graduate of the college of agriculture.

Railroads are granting reduced rates to Madison, Feb. 19-23, for the occasion.

THIS FARMER HAS NO USE FOR ALFALFA

"Alfalfa is the most uncertain of all hay varieties in southern Wisconsin, owing to the varied winter temperatures. One may have a field of it in the fall and a field of nothing in the spring, it having been killed out over."

DENBY HOLDS HIS CONDUCT INNOCENT

Leases Advantageous to Government, Belief of Retiring Official.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1923, by Janesville Daily Gazette.

Washington—Unwilling to embarrass the Coolidge administration yet insistent that his course of action has been without reproach, Mr. Denby has withdrawn from the cabinet just as a resolution adopted recently by the United States senate asked that he should do so.

The decision to withdraw has not been sudden. Mr. Denby felt from the first that the unfortunate attack which had been made against him would embarrass the administration because of the fact that this is a campaign year. He was ready to resign earlier but was persuaded not to do so.

The friends of the administration were of the opinion that to resign immediately upon the passage of the senate resolution would be to confess guilt and that it would hurt more than help politically. So it was determined that the president should issue his defense of the character and integrity of Mr. Denby and that the withdrawal when it was made should be based simply on the differences that have arisen with respect to the execution of the leasing policy.

Denby's Contention. Mr. Denby has contended that the leases he made in conjunction with Secretary Fall were advantageous to the government. He has believed that an impartial investigation of the facts would vindicate him. On the other hand, the insistence of the senate that the leases be cancelled has forced the executive branch of the government to go into the courts to request injunctions nullifying the leases made by Messrs. Fall and Denby. The appointment of a special counsel was for that specific object.

As pointed out in these dispatches last week, the administration realized the advisability of having special counsel appointed by the president seeking to set aside an action taken by two other departments of the government. Under these circumstances a resignation was inevitable.

Mr. Denby now awaits the findings of the special investigation taken by counsel. He has a host of friends who believe that when the inquiry is finished he will come out of it fully vindicated.

New Piece on Controversy. However, that may be, the resignation has for the moment put a new face on the whole Teapot Dome controversy. There have been some other differences between the White house and the secretary of the navy relative to the proposed expedition of the air ship "Shenandoah" to the north pole. Mr. Denby has been enthusiastic for the project while Mr. Coolidge has poured cold water on it with the statement that he didn't feel warranted in going to the expense unless Congress approved it.

Clearly the Coolidge administration has felt the weight of the attack on the secretary of the navy and the president's friends have been determined that he should not be injured in the forthcoming campaign by appointments made and action taken when he was not in office.

Mr. Coolidge has been represented by his intimates as desirous of clearing his name and they hint that from now on he may be counted upon to make other changes which he might otherwise have delayed pending the outcome of the presidential campaign.

Denby, a Weak Spot. The one weak spot in the Coolidge armor, politically speaking, has been the retention of Mr. Denby as secretary of the navy. When the resolution asking for his withdrawal was passed and it appeared as if Mr. Coolidge would retain him, the democrats were jubilant. They had at last to their own satisfaction brought the president into joint responsibility for some of the phases of the Teapot Dome mixup. Now, however, Mr. Denby helps to clear Mr. Coolidge's skirts and enables the president to stand before the country as having taken every step that could be taken by him to assure the protection of the government's interests in the matter of oil reserves.

DECISION ON FUND IS EXPECTED SOON

Supreme Court Will Enter Memorandum in Emergency Suit, Belief.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Madison—Within a few days, the supreme court is expected to enter a special decision in the state emergency fund controversy, on which arguments were submitted to the court last Saturday, state officials said today.

Although both the university and normal schools will be able to operate the remainder of the school year without the emergency money, officials of the normal and university boards declare plans for the remainder of the year will depend upon decision in the case. Considerable experimental work at the state university is involved in the emergency requests and a sum for textbooks for the present year is involved in the normal schools' requests.

The court probably will enter only a memorandum in the case, without an opinion, it was said.

For the permanent relief of constipation, eat Kellogg's Bran regularly—two tablespoons daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. It sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestines. It cleans them of the dangerous poisons that lead to other diseases. It is guaranteed to bring results, or your grocer will return your money.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumpled, is delicious with milk or cream. You will like its nut-like flavor—so different from ordinary, tasteless bran. Sprinkle it over the cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Put it in Kellogg's Bran muffins, griddle cakes and many other wonderful recipes given on the package.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumpled, is made in Battle Creek and is served by the leading hotels and clubs everywhere. It is sold by all grocers.

Mr. Patch writes that Kellogg's Bran "solved his problem." It has solved the problem of constipation—mild and chronic—for thousands of others. It has brought relief when all else has failed because Kellogg's Bran is ALL Bran. Nothing but ALL Bran can be 100 per cent effective. Read Mr. Patch's letter:

Dear Sir:

I have been a constant sufferer from constipation and have wondered what was the cause of it. I have tried about all the cereals I could find and finally tried Kellogg's Bran. This solved my problem. I feel 100 per cent better and I owe it to your Bran.

Thanking you very kindly for this great cereal, I am

STUDENTS OBSERVE U. W. ANNIVERSARY

75th Year of State Institution Celebrated in Madison Fete.

Madison—More than 6,000 students and former students gathered here last night and celebrated the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the University of Wisconsin. The story and progress of the school were depicted in a play arranged by university officials.

One of the chief features of the event was a huge cake, having on it seventy-five cardinal candles. At the conclusion of a series of talks by former students and officials, President E. A. Birge received the first piece from the cake. After he was served, the students and visitors clamored for their share of the cake.

WASHINGTON AND LINCOLN LAUDED IN CASE'S SERMON

"Glimpses of Washington and Lincoln" was the sermon topic of the Rev. E. P. Case at the Methodist church at the Sunday evening service. Washington and Lincoln were stated to be the two greatest Americans, one the father of his country and the other the savior of his country.

Taking his classification of great men from Pascal, who divides them into three groups, militaristic, learned, and men of personal worth, Mr. Case treated both Lincoln and Washington in the light of each of these divisions. The multitudes are always able to appreciate a man of force, he said, but far fewer appreciate the men who have studied and given to the world the creations of their genius, and only a scant number appreciate the men of personal worth, though they give to the world its greatest legacy.

Treating Washington as a military genius, Mr. Case told of his battles during the Revolution, and the final stroke by which he outwitted the British. As a creative genius, Washington created the nation of which he is called the father. And the final step, the religion of Washington was considered, and the Rev. Case told of his personal experiences when he sat in the pew in a Boston church formerly occupied by him, and in the church at Alexandria, Va., which he attended.

"CINTER AVEN-YA" LIKE OL' TIME FRIEND, SAYS PAT

A plaintive note of protest against changing the name of Cinter Avenue is struck by "K," a contributor, in a clever poem entitled "Street Names," written in connection with the proposed renaming of four Janesville streets to eliminate confusion.

The poem, conceived and rambling off in true Erin style, follows:

STREET NAMES
Pat shook down the stove—thin
he filled his pipe,
"An' struck the match on his fat,
"Cinter Aven-yu, it was named,"
he says,

"In the days of old man Tot,
"This munny an' honest man's walked its path,
"An' munny a drunk," says he,
"An' munny a cow's run a 'Dairy
Lunch'
Off its green grass growin' free,
Now, all cressed up, with its nose
in the air,
An' holdin' a big bouquet,
"Tis a damn shame, Kilt, for to switch its name,

"Tis takin' a friend away,
"But for Walnut street (sure, 'tis where we live),
"With divil a tree in sight,
"An' which never begins, nor do it end,
"Burdock, Boodle-yard' is right,
All the streets are goin' wild with their style,
But names are like women, Kilt,
If they're natural, they can always make
A damn sight more of a hit."

At the Theatres

AT THE APOLLO.
With such admonition as "this picture will not be of interest to children" and much suggestive explanation, "Flaming Youth" had its premier at the Apollo Monday with every seat in the house occupied at both evening shows, all of which seems to indicate that people flock to an entertainment calculated to tickle the senses. Perhaps many were fooled for "Flaming Youth" does manage somehow to slip just within the line of censors. Good acting, especially by the star, Colleen Moore, who has cast all former winners into the refuse pile, gorgeous scenes, and good photographs, save the picture in spite of a rather flimsy plot. Elliott Dexter is as always the delected and rejected lover; Milton Sills the sweetheart of two generations; and Myrtle Stedman, the mother of the flapper. Pat Pentrice, (Colleen Moore).

There are many wild parties, orgies of Babylonian splendor, several "necking" gatherings, but through it all, the spectators are somehow convinced that the flapper will survive the flaming age and come out only a little singed.

Are You Using SOLITE GASOLINE?

IF NOT, you are overlooking a highly volatile gasoline that will give a better account of itself in your motor than any of the so-called "high-test" gasolines you have ever used.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is proud of the record that Solite has made in the short space of one year, and it is equally proud to recommend Solite to the motorist who has been using so-called "high-test" gasolines.

Solite has all the qualities for instant starting and quick pick-up that so-called "high-test" gasolines have, but in addition it produces tremendous power and racing speed if you want it.

The answer is that Solite drives the piston the full stroke under power—which is unusual in a light gasoline.

Solite has given such splendid service that it has won for itself a definite place in the minds of thousands of motorists.

For a light gasoline it is low priced—

bell at the American section hall, which is housed in the old Methodist church.

The same persons who declared their approval of the verdict voiced their protest of the counsel for the state. Flushing from the start in what, to others, appeared a hopeless task, the district attorney, Alfred Godfrey, and his special assistant, Jay W. Page, Elkhorst, made a magnificent effort to convince the jury that justice alone could be served by finding Ernest Kufahl guilty of the poisoning of the husband. But Mrs. Schaudé told too many stories of what occurred at her home the night her husband died.

Kufahl Shows Emotion

Attorney Jay W. Page closed his argument for conviction of Ernest Kufahl on a first degree murder charge at 2:40 p. m. and as he continued a review of the evidence in the beautiful cemetery over at Whitewater, the cold and stoical defendant, seated by his attorneys, wept for the first time during the trial. He held a handkerchief close up to his face. It was the only time Kufahl showed any emotion.

At the conclusion of the jury which the state claimed he played in the murder of Edward J. Schaudé, acting in concert with his wife, the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty."

The clock ticked off 10 minutes as deathly stillness reigned in the courtroom. As the jury entered the approach of the climax. Judge Fowler, moving over to the chair on the witness stand, that he might better hear the verdict, called the jury to the room.

It took but 16 minutes.

Three Forms of Verdict

He outlined three forms of verdict, one of which the jury was to return.

Finding Ernest Kufahl guilty of first degree murder, which automatically carries a sentence of life imprisonment.

Or if they find that Edward Schaudé did not die from strychnine poisoning, but that he mixed of the strychnine in the prune juice with the intent to murder.

Ed Schaudé, they should return a finding to this effect.

This is covered by a special statute and carries a sentence of from one to 10 years in state's prison.

The third verdict possible was one of not guilty. As the jury where the jury was not convinced, beyond a reasonable doubt, of the guilt of the defendant.

Judge Fowler charged the jury to weigh the evidence, and the credibility of the statements of the witnesses. Commenting on the two different stories of the poisoning told by Mrs. Schaudé and Ernest Kufahl, he declared "it is obvious that either Mrs. Schaudé or Kufahl falsified."

Number Dividends

Before the jury left the courtroom for their deliberations, it was not until 4:35 that the jury was finally settled in the room and began their deliberation. Large numbers remained in the courtroom anticipating a quick verdict. As the sun per hour approached it dwindled in a small number. Ernest Kufahl, confident of his acquittal, remained at his post, the courtroom throughout the deliberations, chatting with his father and sister and newspapermen. If he was suffering from anxiety at the possibility of an unfavorable verdict, he did not show it.

Cody to County.

The Kufahl murder trial will cost Walworth county between $2,500 and $3,000. It was estimated Monday by county officials. Whether an equal amount will be required to cover the cost of the Schaudé murder trial is problematical.

District Attorney Godfrey declared Tuesday that he completely accepted the verdict of the jury in the trial of Ernest Kufahl; that his attitude on all state cases is to make as good a presentation of the evidence as possible and let the jury decide whether or not the defendant shall go free.

Reunited Boyhood Friends Who Came From Germany 50 Years Ago

(By Staff Correspondent)

Elkhorn, Wis., Feb. 18.—Ernest Kufahl slept in the Julius Optiz home, where his father celebrated a double joy, that of the freedom of his son and of being reunited with his boyhood friends.

Fifty years ago, Julius Optiz, then 12 years old, and Ferdinand Kufahl, 16, were schoolmates in Pomerania, Germany. Then the young Kufahl set out for America and had been coming to Edgerton, Wis., for 12 years.

Optiz followed years later and came to Elkhorn, but they did not meet again until a picture of Kufahl's son reawakened in the mind of Julius Optiz, who had been in the city.

He found Ferdinand Kufahl at an Elkhorn hotel and they have had many happy moments together. Julius Optiz is now entertaining the entire family.

Ernest Kufahl returned back to the farm near Watertown, with his father and sister, Tuesday morning. There he will spend some time and then go back to the Elkhorn place of 40 acres of brush on the Silver Star settlement near McGrath, Minn., where his plans for making a home for his family were interrupted by the disclosure which has placed an insurmountable barrier in the way of his hopes.

Kufahl Attempts to See Myrtle Schaudé Before Leaving Elkhorn Jail

(By Staff Correspondent)

Elkhorn.—It is heart filled with the joy over a verdict acquittal, Ernest Kufahl did not forget the woman who now stands alone to pay the penalty for the crimes which formed their unholy love, calling at the county jail Monday night to see Mrs. Myrtle Schaudé and say farewell to the sheriff, and those men in jail who have been his companions.

It was like Ernest Kufahl that he himself, did not ask to see the woman to whom he had been engaged and whom by his denials on the witness stand he claimed as one who had had him.

He called at the county jail at 9 p. m. Monday, accompanied by his father, Ferdinand Kufahl, his former schoolmate at Whitewater, and former friends, Frank Bretschneider, and Arthur Optiz of Elkhorn. As Ernest Kufahl went into his cell to bring out his effects, his father called Donnelly, the jailer, to one side and asked to see Myrtle Schaudé. The deputy refused.

His effects already packed in anticipation of leaving the jail, Kufahl brought his satchel and many boxes out of cell 6, and gave some milk checks and a bottle of milk to a bootlegger. The bootlegger didn't thank him, "Good bye, Chuck," "Good bye, Bill," he said to the others in the jail and shook hands with one.

The Resignation of Mr. Denby.

There was not so much surprise in the resignation of Secretary Denby as might have been expected from the situation which was presented after the action of the senate asking for his ouster. The senate has just as much business to ask for that resignation as the cabinet might have had in asking that some senator should resign or be ousted. Mr. Denby was not the appointee of Mr. Coolidge. He was taken over along with the rest of the administrative machinery, last August. There has never been so much as a suggestion that there was anything in the slightest degree tainted with fraud in the administration by Denby. In the face of all the facts presented and others to be presented as to the Teapot Dome and California oil reserves, it was premature and tactless on his part to rush to his own defense. It may have been a brave thing to do but it lacked judgment.

Mr. Denby's going has removed one of the storm centers. There are many republicans, real friends of the president, who hope that the other storm area, the one surrounding the attorney general, will be removed by his resignation.

There has been no connection established between the attorney general and any of the oil leases or any of the negotiations by Mr. Fall or the navy department. That is plain. But Mr. Coolidge has an administration for which he is president is responsible. Had he appointed Mr. Daugherty it would have been far different. But he cannot afford to bear the burden placed upon him or seek any additional controversies because of a legacy he has accepted temporarily. The department of justice would not cease to function were Mr. Daugherty to resign. It would be the part of good judgment so to act. We should like to see a lawyer in that job who has no political ambitions and who would be cold-blooded enough to unearth the criminal negligence which in the hysteria of war made it possible for so many millions of American dollars to be wasted. The few millions Teapot Dome would lose to the taxpayers of the nation are mere elphers compared with the riotous dipping into the treasury by contractors during the war. As long as we are hunting pole cats we might as well round up all of them.

Just when people had nearly forgotten him Mr. Vanderlip achieved a niche in the fall of fame.

The McAdoo Machine Nicely Oiled.

Before it became known that the former secretary of the treasury had been on the pay roll of the Doherty oil interests and the exposure of such connection came through the testimony of his client, William Gibbs McAdoo, had formed a very efficient machine for his presidential nomination. He submitted the question of his candidacy to that same machine and it has given him a certificate of character. "This conference" at Chicago to settle the question comes nearer being the political bank than any contribution so far in the campaign strangely devoid of any excitement. Of course the conferees could not have it otherwise. Several of them would be out of a job. It was called by McAdoo's manager who selected the representatives.

There is hardly a leading democratic newspaper in the country that has not clearly pointed out that Mr. McAdoo would be on the defensive from the very start of a campaign in which he was a candidate. It may be that he is as innocent as James C. Blaine in connection with Credit Mobilier or the Mulligan letters exposure, but it seems clear that Mr. McAdoo might also take a lesson from the fate of Mr. Blaine. A defensive candidate is a weak candidate. We may admit that the former secretary of the treasury, who resigned from the cabinet in the middle of his term, was in no way connected with oil leases and that he had no fine a distinction about appearing before departments of the government for his client, that he permitted all that work to be done by his law partner; but it is also plain that his conscience was not aroused until the evidence of his employment had been made public. Paul saw the light on the way to Damascus no more quickly than McAdoo. His resignation was a Doherty attorney followed at once after the exposure. It was unfortunate that Mr. Doherty spoke so soon, since the $25,000 annual retainer would have added materially in the payment of the campaign expenses for the machine Mr. McAdoo has had working overtime for him.

Still we are not all constituted so as to appreciate the delicate adjustment of the McAdoo conscience. We are prone to be rough and rugged as a people in our ideas of honesty and the ruler yesterday looks just as bad today.

Right after the war there was a great rush to "get to the government," and employment for most any kind of an official who had a "drag" that would give him entrance to government departments was found to be a pleasing method of making easy money. From this time of the signing of the armistice through the two years following, most any person who had a connection with the Wilson administration and knew what had been going on in the departments, was eligible for a job with the many Dohertys who needed aid. Mr. McAdoo seems to have been fortunate in his innocent connection with such service in that it kept him on the far bank out, skirts. It was natural therefore that his followers should find him at least 92 1/2 per cent pure.

THE OIL INVESTIGATION

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN.

Washington.—The crowds that throng the committee room in the senate office building, where the hearings in the oil investigation are being conducted, attest the deep public interest in the proceedings. When the inquiry was started no one paid any attention to what the committee was doing, and there was no attendance at all at the hearings. However, when sensational evidence came out relative to large loans of oil money and precisely annual retainer to former cabinet officials the investigation began to draw like a three-ring circus. The committee was forced to use a larger room for its public sessions and it was apparent that the "standing room only" sign would be out as long as the scandalous disclosures were being made or threatened, or there was chance of witnessing the grilling of some notable or seeing a kind-hearted, open-handed multi-millionaire.

The hearings are held in the room at the extreme northwest corner of the third floor of the senate office building. Long before the hour for the committee to sit, every available inch of space in the chamber is occupied and there is a line in the hall outside of those who hope to be able to squeeze in when the earlier spectators tire of the show.

The days when the sessions of the committee have been followed by the thrilling debates on the floor of the senate have been strenuous ones for the curious-minded, for seats in the senate galleries also have been at a premium. It has required no little ability and a large amount of push and pull to be able to "cover" the proceedings both in the office building and in the senate and only those fortunate enough to have senators or relatives or friends have really been able to catch the feat.

Almost half the space in the hearing room is occupied by the committee, the witnesses and the gentlemen of the press. A great table extends across the north end of the room where the inquisitors have their seats. Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin, as chairman of the committee on public lands, presides and sits midway of the table, facing the room. Senator Walsh of Montana, who has been enacting the role corresponding to that of a prosecuting attorney in court procedure, sits at the chairman's left, flanked by his secretary and assistants.

At right angles with the committee table, two big tables extend down into the room some 25 or 30 feet. These are for the accommodation of the working newspaper correspondents—those who are writing running stories of the proceedings for dispatch by wire to newspapers all over the United States or to be hurried to the offices of the local papers. Having taken the testimony in shorthand or by longhand, the reporters are then in position to write up their stories. Here and there magazine writers and publicists of national prominence are to be recognized.

Below the press tables is an aisle across the room and then come the chairs for the spectators. The first three rows of seats are reserved for senators and are occupied by their friends and relatives. The others are available to the public on a first-come-first-served basis.

The witness who is being examined sits opposite to and facing the chairman of the committee. Thus his back is toward the room and unless he has a strong voice and chooses to exercise it, the spectators find it extremely difficult to hear very much of what he says. "They do not even have the advantage of being able to see his face and try to read when their ears fail them. At the right of the witness sit the official reporters who work in relays, taking the testimony in shorthand and receiving and annotating the documents that are offered in evidence.

Around the walls by the committee and press tables are chairs for senators not members of the investigating committee, representatives, departmental officials, waiting witnesses and those mysterious individuals who are always on hand when anything unusual is going on in Washington and somehow manage to crowd in among the elect and the mighty.

Among the main body of spectators there are always more women than men. Possibly this is because women are more curious, and possibly it is due to the fact that women have more leisure to spend in attendance at such affairs. Many of them are the wives and daughters of senators, representatives and other government officials. The atmosphere is a distinctly society atmosphere to that of the proceedings. Then there is always the little group of "regulars" who never miss a committee hearing that promises anything in the way of excitement. One of these is a little old grey-haired lady who has been a familiar figure on Capitol Hill for twenty years or more, and who always takes voluminous notes of the testimony, although to what purpose no one has ever discovered.

Strike the sessions of the senate proper, or the house, those of the committee are not opened by prayer. That is, they are not unless some of the witnesses offer up silent petitions for strength and grace to see them through the ordeal that confronts them. The chairman merely raps for order and clears the decks for action by making announcements and having read such communications as he may have received that should go into the record. Then he calls the first witness for the day and the excitement begins. A hush falls over the room and one can faintly hear the creaking of necks as the spectators strain to see and hear what is going on.

Many of the witnesses have carefully prepared statements which they read as their testimony in chief or they are asked first to tell in their own way what they know about the matter under investigation. Then, as a rule, comes the direct examination of the witness by Senator Walsh, or Senator Lenroot, or some other member of the committee. Other members of the committee may interrogate the witness in turn, or they may interpolate their questions during the examination by the chairman or Senator Walsh. There are no hard and fast rules of procedure, the main idea and purpose being to bring out anything and everything that is pertinent to the inquiry.

Frequently there are spirited clashes between witness and senatorial inquisitor and occasionally there are extremely tense and dramatic moments that would thrill the most susceptible of auditors. Now and then, too, some one of the dignified senators, who has a keen sense of the requirements of the drama, and knows that there should be a certain amount of comedy relief, interjects a comment or question that is good for a laugh all round, or perhaps a witness develops unexpected gifts as a comedian.

It is a poor day that does not bring forth at least one sensation, and always there is the promise of "hot stuff," as the correspondents call it, for the next session that guarantees constant crowds in the hearing room. It's a good show, with a complete change of bill at every performance, and best of all, it is free. And that means something in these days of theater seats at three to four dollars plus war tax.

After much inquiry it has recently turned out that one of the hats in the presidential ring to which no one has given much thought is that of Hiram Johnson.

We are lax in our educational efforts. Classes in bridge, Mah Jongg and tuiing in a radio should be in every school.

The awful need for reforestation is emphasized when one looks over the poor quality of gubernatorial timber offered this year in Wisconsin.

As William Gibbs McAdoo washed the oil off his hands and looked into the glass he remarked, "Bill, you're all right."

THE RED GERANIUM.

In a tenement window, dark and gloom,
I saw a red geranium:
A touch of beauty shining there
In a desert of anguish and bleak despair.
Dirty walls, and dirty the pane,
Doomed to the smoke of the passing train,
And there by the blossom a woman stood,
Doomed to the dirt of the neighborhood.

Her face was stamped with the seal of care,
Long had the lustre left her hair,
Long had the dreams of her girlhood fled,
Beauty and hope were long since dead;
And I knew as I passed in that rushing train
What the sunlight saw through that window-pane—
Dirty walls, and a barren room,
And a red geranium come to bloom.

And I caught a look in the woman's eye
Which seemed to say, as I hurried by:
"Bitter the life that I live, and hard;
I who once dreamed of a sunny yard
With flowers to tend where the children play,
Now live in a tenement, drab and gray,
But out of my poverty, stark and grim,
I have snatched this scarlet geranium!"

"Think what you will as you hurry on,
With a glimpse of me, and my beauty gone,
But know by this bloom on my window sill
That I loved the flowers, and I love them still;
And know as you pass through your garden gate
Where the roses bloom and your children wait,
That the dreams of a woman who loved have come
To a single potted geranium."

HOROSCOPE

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1924.

Astrologers read this as rather a threatening day, for the sun in adverse way dominates it. Venus is in the sign of Cancer.

The total eclipse of the moon on this date falls in the third degree of Virgo and is believed to cause sickness and sedition.

Such disorders among the people in various countries are indicated. Riots and revolutions are foretold.

Earthquakes, eruptions of volcanoes and tidal waves are forecast.

Yearly signs become very active. The signs are read aright, and Brazil will suffer from seismic disasters.

London astrologers read in the eclipse a signal indication for the King of England, who may become ill and who will bear many grave anxieties.

There is an influence held good for half-completed tasks, which should be finished while this configuration endures.

Saturn today gives promise of better conditions commercially for farmers and fruit growers, but they will find the weather unsatisfactory in many parts of the United States.

Long dry periods followed by terrific storms may be expected in both the eastern and western sections of the United States.

Accidents to war ships and much attention focused on the navy may mark next month.

The elevated position of Uranus at this time is read as not good for president, who may encounter many difficulties in his official career.

Mark is in a place that certainly denotes social troubles and untiring disorders.

Persons who are not very happy should keep business affairs well in hand during the coming year. They may find friends and associates unusually likely to take offense and to become jealous.

Children born on this day may have to overcome many obstacles in the way of success, but these subjects of Pisces are unusually industrious, talented and able to win prosperity. Girls should grow up to be famous housekeepers.

ACUTE RECURRING FERTIO

This is nothing but another name for chilblains. From the fact that there are other names for it you may deduce that we don't know so very much about it.

Spoken of succinctly in a previous article about the causes and prevention of chilblains. Now I grow proud of we're coming to the treatment.

Mild chilblains which fester or burn may be relieved by bathing with plain tepid or boracic acid powder.

If the itching or burning is intense sop on with the fingers some calamine lotion containing one or two per cent of phenol. Such a lotion is made by mixing these ingredients:

Zinc oxide 4 drams
Calamine 4 drams
Glycerine 2 drams
Lime water 2 ounces
Rose water, enough to fill an eight ounce bottle.

Five per cent carbolic solution is the standard phenol solution which may be legally sold by druggists without prescription.

When blisters form they should not be disturbed until it is necessary to be up and about, then each blister should be punctured with a sterile needle near its lower side and the serum gently pressed out upon clean towel or cloth. The surface may then be freely powdered with talcum or boracic powder or any combination of these.

In a number of cases of recurring chilblains success in prevention has been obtained by taking calcium lactate or calcium chloride, about 10 grains after each meal for a few weeks, to supply an adequate calcium ration to the blood which is presumed to be deficient in its lime content, wherefore the vessels are too permeable. Either the lactate or the chloride of calcium may be taken very well diluted with water. This line of treatment has proven efficacious in relieving far fever in some cases, that condition, too, being produced by a deficiency in calcium metabolism.

It is an old belief that the frequent rubbing of the feet with stimulating ointment or liniment, such as camphor or liniment or camphor, will prevent chilblains or which hazen or burn or just ordinary bathing alcohol im-

Made by Nurse

Special forms recommended by the Wisconsin state board of health, for use in the public school systems of the various cities have been adopted by the local health department and are being filed out and sent to parents as the examination of school pupils proceeds under Miss Grace Amherst, city nurse.

If a child is found to be normal in every respect, the nurse so states. If defects are noted, a report of them is likewise made to the parents. The blanks are in the following form:

"We recommend that you take this child to your family physician, or to a dentist (cancel words not applying) for treatment or advice. If for any reason you are unable to do this, please advise either the principal, teacher or nurse, who may be able to assist you. It would be well to take this notice with you.

"Your prompt and cordial cooperation is urged that this part in whose welfare we are mutually interested, may be given every possible advantage for good health in school work."

Provision is made on the reverse side of the slips for a report to the nurse or teacher from the parents as to what was done upon receiving the notice.
